Excerpt from The Irish Handbook of the Holy League, Called the Apostleship of Prayer

My Dear Father Cullen,

I have looked over your Handbook op the Apostleship op Prayer, and have found it everything that could be desired both as to arrangement and matter. Besides all the information and direction which the Members of the Association can possibly require, it contains a body of beautiful devotions which will be useful to the faithful generally. It is an admirable little book of piety, which cannot fail to bring great spiritual profit to those who use it; and, for that reason, I trust it will be used extensively.

I have received, through your kindness, a copy of the Irish Handbook op the Apostleship of Prayer, and thank you very sincerely for it. It is an admirable compilation, containing a great deal of truly edifying matter, and well calculated to effect much good, especially amongst the Associates of the Holy League for whom It is chiefly intended.
